Immigrant Traffic Considered by the Advisory Committee.

Plan for Reducing Expenses-Another Turn in the Troubles of the Jacksonville Southeastern.

The advisory committee on immigrant traffic of the Western Passenger Association commenced a two days' meeting at the Hotel Imperial, New York, yesterday. B. D. Caldwell, chairman of the association, presided. The object of the meeting is to place in effect a recent agreement made regarding European immigrant traffic, of which this section of the association does about $1,000,000 annually. Heretofore, and for several years previous, this part of the business has been in a demoralized condition on account of the excessive commissions paid to steamship agents and by them to others to secure business. This agreement contemplate payment of a reasonable commission only, and the placing of the traffic within the control of the association. The agreement also provides for the placing of a joint agent in New York to look fter the business subject to the orders of the chairman of the association. Satisfactory arrangements were made with the immigrant agents and steamship men, thereby securing their co-operation in making the agreement effective, commencing with business from Jan. 1 next. The joint committee has not yet been appointed, but will be before the meeting adjourns.

Union Pacific Affairs. Judge John M. Thurston, general solicitor of the Union Pacific, who returned to Omaha from St. Louis yesterday, expressed himself at length on the question of the disintegration of the Union Pacific system, which has been exploited in the past week, and also touched on the action of the German bondholders of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company. Of this latter move he said: "The action is by no means a surprise. It is a prelimipary step much desired by the receivers of the Union Pacific, who have wanted to transact matters pertaining to the receivership with some one person or bank authorized to act in behalf of the stockholders. This has been done. There is no fear of dismemberment of the system taking place, as the interests of the Union Pacific are too closely interwoven to be lightly put aside. There is nothing susplcious about the meeting of the German bondholders in Berlin Wednesday. It was only a preliminary step in assisting the receivers to manipulate the property for the best in-

Troubles of the J. S.

At the hearing before Judges Woods and Allen in Chicago last week on application for release of the Jacksonville, Louisville & St. Louis railroad from the Jacksonville Southeastern line receivership on the ground that the record did not show that the road had had any adequate notice of the application for receivers, the judges ruled that the road must be released, but granted the parties interested in the receivership until Friday, Dec. 8, to file additional papers, Henry W. Putnam, of New York, owner of $175,000 of the road's bonds, and also of a large amount of the securities of the other roads in the system, has filed a bill in the United States Circuit Court at Springfield against the road in question and the Finance Company of Pennsylvania, setting up defaults n taxes, insolvency and waste by the present officers, praying that an injunction be ssued against them and a separate receiver appointed for the Jacksonville Louisville & St. Louis. Receivers Bosworth and Anderson filed intervening petitions and the matter will be argued in Chicago to-day.

Will Lead to Pooling Tonnage. "The Indianapolis east-bound pool," said a railway official yesterday, "was among the first pools organized as a step to end a rate war in progress for many months between the roads east out of Indianapolis. The Great Eastern line was then operating out of here over the Indianapolis, Peru & Chicago, and was the greatest rate disturber of all. This pooling arrangement led to a division of tonnage, which in turn resulted in an advance in rates and their maintenance for some years to a greater extent than had been known before, and at the present time I am of opinion that it would be better for the roads and shippers to have tonnage pools. I am confident there is a growing feeling among the more conservative railway officials that the inter-state act should be so amended as to permit railroads to pool their tonnage."

The Pass Question. The general managers of the Western lines, who for two days have been going over the list of people eligible to receive passes on account of business reason, finally finished their work at Chicago yesterday, but Chairman Midgley, of the Western Freight Association, in whose hands the matter was left, will work on the matter a week before it is finally finished. Several of the roads have agreed to leave the matter with the chairman and the committee two in the more important cities only on the condition that their competitors are also in the agreement. All the lines in the West are not yet in, but fifty-five of them have signed, and the agreement will proba-

Local Insurance Men Sign It to Maintain the Commission Rates.

At last the fire insurance agents of the city have succeeded in inaugurating plan in their business, if successful, that will mean the saving of thousands of dotlars to them each year. The object which has been sought for several years has been accomplished by obtaining the signatures of the various fire insurance agents to an ironclad compact by which the agents are so encompassed that it is impossible for any of them to cut rates by dividing commissions with the insured. The subscriber to the compact obligates himself under oath to divide commissions in no case whatever and for a violation of this obligation he agrees to pay a fine of $50 for the first offense. Upon a repitition of the offense he agrees to expulsion from the compact and to the surrender of his companies to other agents. When an agent is accused of having divided commissions a formal charge must be preferred against him before A. T. Allen, the manager. The manager may then require the accused to make an affidavit as to the truth or falsity of the charge, and if the accused refuses to make the proper affidavit the manager may call upon the insured for the affidavit. In case the insured should also refuse to make the affidavit the manager is bound to increase the rate 25 per cent, upon all property insured or in which the insured holds any interest. The in-surance men think this will revolutionize the insurance business here and make the business profitable. One of the "gents said last night that a majority of the agents were opposed to the compact, but could not refuse to sign it. At the end of the month, each agent is required to make oath that he has not violated the compact. There was to have been a meeting of the agents yesterday afternoon,

Supreme Court Cuts Off a Proposed Purchase at Madison.

Judge Friedley's Decision - Gabriel's Practical Joke Proves Very Costly -Miscellany of the Courts.

Yesterday Judge Howard granted a temporary restraining order in the suit which was appealed to the Supreme Court from the Jefferson Circuit. The case is that of Joseph T. Brashear, Isom Ross and other citizens of Madison against the City of Madison, its clerk, treasurer and the Council and the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Company. This suit was brought in the Jefferson Circuit Court to restrain the city from making a contract with this company for the placing of a plant in the city, consisting of four alarm strikers and twelve boxes, which was to have been completed by the 5th of next month and put in operation for the sum of $5,000. The suit was brought on the unconstitutionality of the Council's action in going in debt beyond the 2-per-cent. limit. A temporary restraining order was issued there, but Judge Friedley sustained a demurrer to the complaint. The appellees appealed to the Supreme Court, and Chief Justice Howard granted a temporary restraining order and set the hearing of the case for Jan. 5. This was done on account of the great emergency existing from the fact that the City Council which met last night intended to take final action on the contract. The court also ordered the clerk to telegraph to the proper authorities at Madison the substance of the order. The decision of Judge Friedley, delivered on Dec. 4, is commented on in Madison as being very remarkable. The Judge made a lengthy statement of the facts alleged in the complaint, in which he said the allegations that the water works were not selfsustaining, and although the receipts ran over $5,000 a year behind the expenditures t made no difference. He also held that the fact that the City Council ran behind reason that if the orders were issued for borrowed money they were null and void and the city was not liable for the money, and if they were issued to take up or renew valid debts of the city contracted prior to the 14th day of March, 1881, when the constitutional limitations of indebtedness were contracted they were a part of the $271,000 of the city debt and made matters no worse. He held that although as the contract between the city of Madison and the Gamewell Fire Alarm Company provided that the city should issue an order for $5,000 whenever the apparatus had been put in according to contract; and although as the contract provided for the completion of the work in January, 1894, the contract did not create a debt against the city because it was contingent upon the doing of the work, and the Gamewell company might not conclude to put in the alarm, in which event the city would have nothing to pay. The Judge also held that the city was not bound by the ordinance of March 17, 1887, in which the Common Council pledged itself to make annual appropriations of the revenues of the city and to live within the same, that it could di-

GABRIEL'S PRACTICAL JOKE.

It Is Likely to Land Him in Prison for Awhile. Jacob Gabriel, an Indianapolis Hebrew of uncertain character, has proven himself a miserable failure as a practical joker. His latest humorous caper has resulted seriously and will, without doubt, land him in the Prison North for a term of years not yet decided by the court. Gabriel was before the federal authorities yesterday, charged with having slipped a counterfeit dollar into the coffers of David Rosuck, a iveryman, at No. 58 West Merrill street. Attorney Orton appeared for the defendant. To the jury Gabriel related the incident that impelled him to commit a laughable folly. From childhood it appears that he has been a funny fellow. Some of his pranks were of wondrous design. He devoted every hour of his spare time to "conning" up some harmless little diversion for the benefit of his friends. One Sunday evening during the mellow autumn Jake was over at the house of Tom Barnaby, and watched the latter as he toyed with a bright, new counterfeit dollar. It struck the young man that here was an opportunity to 'string" his friend Rosuck, the liveryman. Straightway he secured the coin, and that evening tendered it to Rosuck in payment for a vehicle. For more than a week he reveled in mirth at the discomfiture of Rosuck, and then the United States authorities got hold of it, and United States Marshal Hawkins one day lent additional humor to the affair by slippin lockers upon Jacob's wrist. The staid body of jurymen listened to a portrayal of these ludicrous situations with gay spirits. Even the dignified features of Judge Baker were prone to relax a bit as the humor of the transaction burst upon the court room, but when Mrs. Katharine Douch, keeper of a grocery store on Elizabeth street, walked in and identified the dollar as one which Ga-

payment for a package of cigarettes, there was a suppression of merriment in court that appalled the prisoner's attorney. One or two other witnesses said some adverse things about Gabriel's magic joke dollar. The jury was out about ten minutes, and found the prisoner guilty. IT IS THREE-CORNERED

Rather Interesting Fight Over the Democratic Chairmanship.

Gray, Voorhees and "90-Per-Cent." Factions-Extra Session of the Legislature Probable.

There isn't a great deal of contest over the chairmanship of the Democratic State committee, to be left vacant by the retirement of landlord Taggart on Jan. 8, but there is some. The party regards next year's fight as just about hopeless unless there is a remarkable change of conditions, and nobody is particularly anxious about standing up to be knocked down. However, there are still three years of federal office holding for the Democrats and a whole lot of "pie" is still undistributed. There is a legend that the "machine" occasionally has some influence in this distribution, and for this reason there is some anxiety about its control.

The situation has developed a rather peculiar three-cornered fight. The "10-per cent." wing is on the verge of a split. It will be remembered that a few weeks ago Isaac Pusey Gray, of Mexico, who is well remembered in Indiana, flitted into town, gave a dinner to a few politicians of the State and then flitted about through various counties, finally vanishing completely just before the recent meeting of the State committee. It was asserted that he was setting up the pins to control the ma-"faithful Achates," D. F. Allen, of Frankfort, is being pushed for the chairmanship. But, it seems, Senator Voorhees isn't this deal. He has all the patronage in sight and doesn't care to have the State committee bothering about it. He thought he had fixed Gray about right when he sent him to Mexico, and sees no reason why the latter should be interested further in Indiana politics. Therefore, his partner, John E. Lamb, is "mentioned" for the place. Lamb's supporters declare that he possesses about all the political sense contained in the party hereabouts since James H. Rice died. But there are some of the "90 per cents." left-"original Cleveland men," though they don't like to be called that since they have been so unmercifully frozen out. They want to demonstrate that they are still living, and are, therefore, "talking up" the awful Green Smith for chairman. They insist that Smith is just the sort of a man to lead a forlorn hope and that if every other resource failed he could talk the Republican party to death in three rounds. Roby rules.

An Extra Session Probable. Democrats who keep track of things are confidently expecting an extra session of the Legislature next spring. The tax law case is to be decided by the United States Supreme Court in the near future and they believe that the railroad feature of the law will be overthrown. In case it is, heavy pressure will be brought to bear upon the Governor to call an extra session and patch the law up before another campaign comes around. It is possible also that a final decision on the gerrymander suit will be reached during the winter and as they feel pretty sure that this is going against them, it will afford additional ground for the extra

The Gerrymander Suit. County Clerk Wilson reports that a few of the returns in the gerrymander suit are still missing. These summonses are served by the coroners, being against the sheriffs, and some counties have lost track of their coroners. However, they hope to have the returns all in within the next couple of weeks. The Democrats have not indicated as yet whom they intend to employ. Green Smith wanted to fight the case alone, but the State committee decided to let him assist somebody else and it is rumored that it proposes to employ a Republican attorney. Hon. W. L. Taylor has been employed by a number of the county officers served with summons to appear in their defense. Prominent Politicians in Town. The Scottish Rite convocation brought several prominent Republicans from the State to this city yesterday and the air was thick with political talk about the Denison House. Among those from out of town were Hon. A. C. Lindemuth, of Richmond, candidate for Secretary of State; W. G. Wilson, of Fort Wayne, candidate for Auditor of State; Senator L. P. Newby, of Knightstown, and Hon. Rolla Oglesbee, of Plymouth, chairman of the Marshall county "The Soldier's Best Friend." To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal Comrade Captain Myers, Secretary of State, is quoted in the Sentinel as saying in reference to the President's message to Congress: "He is correct on the tariff and he is correct on the pension question." If, as he further says, "I have always regarded him as the best friend the soldier has," it is not surprising that he unequivocally indorses all the President said on that question; I do not believe that 90 per cent. of the twelve or fifteen thousand Indiana soldiers who voted last year for Captain Myers indorse the extravagant, uncalled-for and unjust assertion of the President, unquestionably made with the malicious intent of prejudicing the minds of the American peoole against the whole pension system of the country, and directly insulting all the defenders of the Union, when he deliberately said in the message, among high sounding and glittering generalities, that "thousands of neighborhoods have their well known fraudulent pensioners, and recent developments by the bureau establish appalling conspiracies to accomplish pension frauds."

Thousands of neighborhoods must cover an immense territory or the size of a neighborhood, in his mind, must have been United States, and Comrade Myers says:

of very small dimensions. The insinuation, however, is that there were several "wellknown fraudulent pensioners" in each of these "thousands of neighborhoods." This is known by every intelligent man to be false and malicious, or the President is the most innocent victim of credulity in the "It is verily a green cheese." But Grover Cleveland's unrelenting war on the men who laid their lives on the altar of their country that this Republic should be preserved. said by this eager sycophant to be "the best friend the soldier has." If that is true, only the Almighty can be relied upon for justice being done them in eternity. VETERANIZED SOLDIER. Indianapolis, Dec. 7. How to Convert a Voter.

To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal: It is very easy to make suggestions, but another matter to act on them. If you will allow the space, please make room for one from this part of the State. As is well known at present, there are thousands of voters in Indiana, many of them life long Democrats, who voted for Cleveland in 1892, who, if the election were held this month, would cast a ballot for protection and reciprocity. By and by we will become accustomed to the change, and these people will continue to vote as in the past; but if we put good solid protection doctrine in their hands now they will be so grounded in their conversion that no Democratic artifice can win them back again. The way to convert a voter is to bring to him the true doctrine of Republicanism now, while he is suffering the folly of voting in the interests of every country but his own. A dollar spent for a good Republican weekly or semi-weekly for the rural voter, and a daily for the city toller, will do more than $3 spent for fireworks a month before the election. Controller Eckels Says Mr. Peirce Is About Even with the Bank.

Dividend to Be Declared in January-Grand Jury Adjourns Until December 18.

John W. Kern, attorney for Receiver Hawkins, of the defunct Indianapolis National Bank, spent some time at the Treasury department at Washington, yesterday, with Controller of Currency Eckels, going over the accounts of the wrecked bank. After the conference the Journal correspondent inquired of Controller Eckels what had been accomplished between himself and Mr. Kern respecting the accounts with the bank of Hon. R. B. F. Peirce. The Controller said: "I have nothing whatever to do relative to the grand jury's work. My relations with the bank affect only the collections. I can say that Mr. Peirce has about settled the claims of the bank against him. He has done the best that could be done under the circumstances, and I have no doubt that he will make good all that he is responsible for; but, mind you, I would not undertake to say what, if any, influence this will have upon the grand jury."

"The most important element of news in connection with Mr. Kern's visit here is the fact that we have decided to declare a dividend to the creditors of the Indianapolis National Bank the first of January." "Can you tell the per cent, which will be paid?" was asked.

"No," was the prompt reply of the Controller. "I would not undertake to say at this time, for there may be material collections made before the dividend is apportioned, and thus the amount may be increased."

Mr. Kern will remain in Washington a day or two longer. It is intimated in another official quarter than the office of the Controller of Currency, that since Mr. Peirce has arranged for the payment of the obligations for which he is responsible there is no likelihood of further proceedings against him. Indictments in the Indianapolis National Bank cases will not be officially returned until Dec. 18. At noon vesterday the grand jury was dismissed by Judge Baker until that date. The adjournment is taken because the federal officers found that it would be impossible for the body to complete the work before the United States Court convenes at Fort Wayne. The session is set down for next week, and this will necessitate the presence in that court of Judge Baker and the district attorney Before the jury was dismissed vesterday the Judge cautioned the members to refrain from comment on their work to persons whom they may chance to meet while absent from their duties. In reply to the caution of the court Foreman Talbott stated that he did not believe there was the slightest danger of the members talking too much. He had implicit confidence in their discretion

Both Receiver Hawkins and expert Hayes say that there is no significance whatever in the delay of the grand jury in reporting upon the bank cases. The work to be done was arduous and heavy and was necessarily slow. One of the indictments against an officer of the wrecked bank comprises alone nearly three hundred pages. Each page of manuscript must be type-written and then read. A single error would cause the page to be rewritten. Expert accountant Hayes will remain here until the indictments have been properly prepared. He will then go East, but will be back to testify for the State in the trial of the bank officials. Ten indictments were yesterday returned against revenue law violators.

duties there.

George Thatcher warmed up a large audience at the Grand last night, and did much better in that line than the heating plant which is supposed to be regularly employed for that purpose. In the burlesque line Mr. Thatcher is as great a success as he was in the line of negro minstrelsy; even more. He brought out laughs faster than a spring shower bring out wigglers in a rainwater barrel. His bill was the new spectacular operatic extravaganza, "Africa," which, while it does not pretend to be on original lines, gives opportunity for all sorts of burlesque and for specialty work that is in the hands of competent and very clever people. The music is a strong feature of the extravaganza and the voices are better than those usually found in a burlesque company. The company a large one, without a single dullard in the troupe. Mr. Thatcher has a great many new jokes, which he deals out in his own inimitable manner, and, with radical departure from the minstrelsy conventionalism, they are nearly all of recent vintage. The plot of "Africa" outlines the adventures of Maurice Merrill, who has a mania for exploring the dark continent. His father, Moses Merrill, determines to humor him for awhile, with the intention of eventually banishing the youth's wild ideas. Mr. Medikus (George Thatcher), is employed as an expert in the treatment of people suffering with manias. The plan is to fit up a yacht and take the youth to an island, where he is to receive a royal scare that will answer for all therapeutic purposes in the case. Rescued as he s about to drop in a cannibal pot, the youth promises to give up all ambition of exploring further, if only allowed to return to his own fireside. Of course there is a sweeta quartet of chums for him, and many other characters. Mr. Thatcher has a monologue on "Etiquette" in the last act that convulsed people for fifteen minutes, and as they began to clamor for more of it, he drifted into parodies of popular songs. The parodies were immensely taking, Thatcher having to bring the series to a close out of sheer respect for the theater employes, who are expected to get home before daylight.

John A. Coleman, as the son, sings a number of songs, and does several genteel contortion acts, the last of which earned him a curtain call. Miss Laura Millard, as Marion Morton, displayed a very strong and very pure voice. Miss Gertrude Reynolds, of the company, is a marvel as a dancer, giving a most graceful performance. Mr. Otis Harlan took the part of Mark Mansfield, "a professional necessary of life." The quartet singing of Messrs. R. J. Jose, Thomas Lewis, John Daly and Charles H. Hopper was warmly encored, for it was the blending of fine voices. The stage setting in the last act, which represents a scene in Africa, is good. The acrobatic work of Messrs. Daly, Baldwin, Heeley, Hickey and Vidocq is the best that has been seen here. The orchestra is augmented for the occasion of Thatcher's appearance, and it is under the direction of Randolph Cruger, the composer of the ex-travaganza. The company will play tonight, to-morrow matinee and to-morrow

A Great Demand for Seats.

The advance sale of seats yesterday for the Marlowe engagement at the Grand Opera House, all next week, was the largest, for an opening day's sale, known here for many months. When the box office was opened in the morning there was a crowd of people who had been waiting for several hours in attendance, and the demand continued great throughout the day A number of theater parties bought seats several of them for more than twenty people each. Dickson & Talbott have also received many orders for seats from out of town. As Miss Marlowe is to give seven performances here, there will be plenty of opportunities to see her. The sale thus far shows no particular preference for any one performance, but are well scattered. Many people bought seats for several nights. That this gifted young woman has established herself as the favorite star that comes to Indianapolis is clearly established. The advance sale will be resumed this morning.

Went on a Rampage. Mollie Everheart, a West Pearl-street young woman, went on a rampage last night and created a disturbance at No. 273 East Court street. The noise attracted the attention of patrolmen Striet and Pope, who prompt
